

Andy Schroeter

Andy Schroeter, a German national, founder/Director/shareholder of Sunlabob Renewable Energy Co. Ltd., is a successful German entrepreneur, who has over 25 years of technical experience in renewable energy, infrastructure and operational logistics. During his 20 years of experience as company designer and manager, he has implemented numeral visions of technical and design concepts that many have never thought possible. Andy is a professional in project and company design, management, technical design as well as practical implementation of renewable energy conceptions, financial management and rural development. His work in Laos with Sunlabob Renewable Energy Co. Ltd. has had a significant effect on rural and country-wide infrastructural development.

His projects in the field of renewable energy have been recognized and awarded by the Development Marketplace of the World Bank in 2005, the German Solar Award 2005 and BBC World Challenge in 2006, awarded by the Ashden Award in 2007 and the African Lighting Award organized by the World Bank. In 2010, he won the Asian Entrepreneur of the Year Award (Asian Region) by the Schwab Foundation.